High School Youth Council members planned and implemented AALEAD's 5th APA Youth Summit at the end of the summer program.

Virginia High School Program: AALEAD staff met with 35 youth from Annandale High School twice per week after-school and engaged youth with ice breakers and team-building activities to build community to strengthen relationships during their second year as an after school program. Youth were provided with a safe and nurturing environment to learn about Asian Pacific American culture, explore their own identity, practice leadership skills, and receive guidance about school, career paths, and college. Activities included community service, leadership workshops, cultural activities, and field trips. During the summer, high school youth participated in the first ever VA Summer Program, and served as leaders for middle school youth in the summer program.

Several VA High School youth also helped with the planning of the 5th Annual APA Youth Summit, a conference hosted by youth for youth to highlight and discuss solutions for issues facing the Asian Pacific American youth community.

Virginia Middle School Program: The brand new VA Middle School Program served 43 youth during a very successful first year. AALEAD partnered with Poe Middle School and Holmes Middle School in Annandale, VA, to launch its first middle school programs in Fairfax County. Youth learned about Asian American cultures, developed leadership skills, accessed school resources, and provided service to their community. Specific activities include cooking workshops highlighting a specific Asian country and its cultural history, counselor and resource teacher panels, and field trips to sites in Fairfax County to learn about the needs of their local community. VA Middle School youth also participated in the first ever VA Summer Program, which allowed participants an opportunity to expand upon their leadership skills and work on service projects in their community.

Youth Mentoring Program: The AALEAD Mentoring Program served 60 pairs across the greater DC Metro area. The Mentoring Program matches Asian Pacific American youth between the ages of 10 and 18 with caring adults who support them in developing the academic and personal skills necessary to succeed. Mentors meet one-on-one with their mentees and engage in activities in their local community. Mentors must be 21 or older and must be committed to meeting with their youth for a minimum of 6 hours per month for one year. Past outings have included museum and college visits, community service events, academic support, cultural exploration through food, and spending time together, among others. AALEAD trains each mentor and supports mentors and mentees through regular field trips and community service activities that bring pairs together for bonding and encouragement.

Community College Mentoring Program: AALEAD's Community College Program supports youth through college transitions and with career development. Students enrolled at Montgomery College in Maryland were matched with Career Coaches who supported each participant with developing and achieving personal, academic, and professional goals each semester. To the extent possible, participants are matched with professionals working in fields of interest so that they can learn more about the career opportunities available and receive valuable knowledge to prepare for the workforce. Participants in the program also receive 1:1 college advising and support from AALEAD staff and opportunities to participate in workshops focused on college resources, transfer advising, resume writing, and career development.
